VISION & PHILOSOPHY

Our Mission

To provide collaborative intervention services to child abuse victims, so that they are encouraged to embrace a future driven by hope.

Our Vision

To be the foundation for the most effective community response to reported child abuse and provide children a turning point on the pathway to healing.

Our Philosophy

Child abuse damages our community's most vulnerable citizens and often has generational implications. In the context of violence, child abuse is a public health problem that presents complex social and moral dilemmas concerning its cause, effect and remedy. Addressing child abuse requires a comprehensive plan with multiple, coordinated strategies.

I M P A C T L I V E S

The Child Abuse Network exists to reduce the trauma that a child abuse investigation can pose for the child. Before our program came into being, children frequently endured stressful examinations and numerous interviews by various agencies in cold, sterile facilities.

CAN delivers a highly effective alternative by bringing multiple disciplines together in a single, safe and comforting environment for children in crisis. CAN enables medical, mental health, investigative and legal professionals to work together under one roof, to provide less traumatic investigations and to determine whether child abuse has occurred.

The Child Abuse Network promotes a multidisciplinary approach to child abuse investigation and serves as the coordinator for the multiple agencies that interact with children of reported child abuse. The result is a collaborative and non-duplicated interagency approach to investigate abuse and protect children in crisis. The multidisciplinary team of professionals works from one central location to investigate reported child abuse. This approach allows the team to immediately share information and eliminate duplicate efforts. As a result, investigations are expedited and children can begin their healing sooner. To learn more about CAN's unique, centralized approach, visit: www.childabusenetwork.org.

FROM OUR LEADERSHIP

It has been said that the best preparation for tomorrow is doing your best today. This year the Child Abuse Network team worked tirelessly to ensure that we effectively met the critical need for services while simultaneously preparing to lay the foundation for future growth opportunities.

This past year was very busy for the Child Abuse Network. The team at the Center provided services to another record 2,499 children; two new waiting rooms (converted from offices) were added; and we took another step to making our expansion a reality.

Last year also marked CAN's 25th anniversary. As anniversaries go, ours was not one to celebrate as much as it was to reflect on the more than 31,000 children CAN has helped. In 1988 CAN was incorporated and began its quest: "Keeping foremost the best interest of the child, the mission of the Child Abuse Network is to facilitate a community based multidisciplinary approach to the prevention, assessment, investigation, prosecution and treatment of child abuse and neglect." Twenty-five years later, our mission has been rephrased but our fundamentals remain the same. It is difficult to acknowledge that child abuse even exists, but it does and last year the team saw on average 212 new children per month. Sadly this is only about a third of the Tulsa County children who are reportedly abused and neglected; there is still much more work to be done.

Each year we are challenged to meet yet another increase in the number of children and ever-rising demand of services. This past year we exceeded the Center's waiting-area space, so CAN implemented a plan to convert two offices into waiting rooms and one office into a consultation room. This plan required CAN's administrative staff to relocate to the gymnasium on campus. Doors to the rooms were opened and the rooms were put to use in June. This relocation of staff demonstrated once again our need for expanded space and the board engaged our friends at Littlefield Branding to put a face on our vision. CAN now has an expansion theme which conveys our passion for protecting children and replacing their hurt with hope.

We simply couldn't do what we do without the support of our generous friends in the Tulsa community - the many donors, volunteers, staff and partner agency members. On behalf of the CAN Board, I would like to thank you for your help in achieving these accomplishments and meeting the challenges. You help us to provide hope and make a difference in the lives of children and their families every day.

Sincerely,

programs and services

The Child Abuse Network coordinates and facilitates a centralized, team approach to minimize the trauma of child abuse investigations.

Forensic Interviews (1,667 interviews)

Forensic interviews are one of CAN's most critical services. The Child Abuse Network employs professional child interview specialists who conduct forensic interviews at the request of child welfare or law enforcement investigators. CAN's interviewers are specially trained to facilitate children's abilities to make accurate statements about their experiences regarding reported abuse. CAN requires that its interviewers have graduate level education and specialized knowledge in the areas of child development, family systems and the dynamics of abuse.

Medical Evaluations (837 exams)

Medical evaluations are an essential part of a child abuse investigation. Medical findings assist investigators to determine whether abuse has occurred. Additionally, the child-friendly medical experts often relieve any anxiety that children may have about the health of their bodies. CAN contracts with the Department of Pediatrics at the University of Oklahoma School of Community Medicine - Tulsa to provide child abuse medical evaluations. The medical team is comprised of specially trained child abuse pediatricians and a nurse (LPN). The team responds to same/next day requests from the child welfare and law enforcement investigators.

Mental Health Services (430 consultations)

Child abuse investigations can be very overwhelming, and many children and families have difficulties dealing with new emotions and anxieties. CAN assists families in many ways, including crisis intervention, consultation and referrals to appropriate therapeutic services and community support programs.

CAN employs mental health specialists who have extensive knowledge in child development, the dynamics of abuse, crisis intervention, family systems and community resources. The mental health specialist's primary focus is to provide immediate support and information to children and their caregivers, so they can establish long-term relationships with appropriate community support programs and therapeutic services.

Case Review and Case Management (821 children)

CAN's team coordinator administers case review meetings twice a week. Case investigators have the opportunity to meet formally with team-agency representatives to discuss and exchange information related to specific child abuse cases. The team seeks to combine the insight and professional knowledge of individual team members and agency representatives for a more complete understanding of case issues and a more supportive response for the child and caregiver(s).
